

CITY MEN TAKE STEPS TOWARD GENERAL HOSPITAL; MAY REPLACE PRESENT COTTAGE STATE PLANT

Erection of Wing at Local Institution and Enlargement of Its Scope Possible.

COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED

T. J. Hooper, Rev. E. B. Burgess and E. T. Norton Chosen to Select Another Board Which Will Report Plans for a Hospital Association.

Having realized the great need of a general hospital, and having gained a clearer comprehension of its possibilities for usefulness in the community, a group of representative men of the city last night took the first steps in the direction of providing such an institution for Connellsville. A committee consisting of T. J. Hooper, Rev. E. B. Burgess and E. T. Norton was appointed to select another committee, the duty of which is to report at a subsequent meeting the suggested organization of a hospital association and to make a general inquiry into the subject, particularly as relates to the means and methods to be employed in its establishment.

This action resulted from a brief discussion of the proposition by 23 men who assembled in the Red Cross rooms at the invitation of T. J. Hooper, chairman of the Connellsville branch of the Red Cross. Calling the meeting to order, Chairman Hooper stated that he was without a definite plan whereby the object might be realized, but invited suggestions with that end in view.

After the selection of Ross S. Matthews as chairman, and H. B. Brown, Jr., as secretary, the persons present addressed themselves to a discussion of the question, "Is a general hospital needed?" There was such a consensus of affirmative opinion on this question that it was very early decided by general assent and consideration of means and methods by which such an institution could be procured occupied the greater part of the discussion.

In pointing out the desirability of establishing a general hospital, Rev. J. L. Proffitt said that it was needed to assist the physicians to better the community. Dr. W. J. Bailey declared it to be the obligation of the business men of the city to make provision for public hospital facilities, not alone for use in times of epidemic but to care for transients who become ill at the hotels and elsewhere in the city. The number of these, the doctor estimated at 200 per year which, on an average of 15 days spent in the hospital by each patient, would mean 3,000 patients of this class per year.

"Physicians should not be the leaders in such an undertaking," said Doctor Bailey. "The obligation rests upon the city. The time will come when the state will devote to communities what they must do in the matter of caring for their own sick. We ought to make preparation for it beforehand."

Rev. E. B. Burgess stated that in his own pastoral relations he had found an average of about 15 members of his congregation during the last five years would have been greatly benefited, and possibly some lives saved, had they had the advantages of hospital care and treatment in times of sickness.

Dr. J. L. Cochran was of the opinion that the establishment of a general hospital is an economic benefit to the community in that when a man is sick he is in the consuming and dependent class. "It is economical," said the doctor, "to restore such a man to the producing class. It is the function of a general hospital to do that. Hospital treatment shortens the period of disability, to say nothing of lessening suffering and the conservation of human life. These reasons are sufficient to induce any good citizen to join in a movement to establish and maintain a general hospital."

When consideration of means and methods was taken up the suggestion of W. D. McGinnis that the Cottage State hospital be converted into a general hospital eventually led to a suggestion by Rev. Burgess which was accepted as the best method of procedure. He proposed that a general plan of a building, suited to the present hospital grounds be prepared, and of such a character as would permit it the erection of one wing of the new building without disturbing the present structure. Upon completion and equipment of the new part the old structure could be torn down and the new built according to the general plan.

Dr. H. C. Hoffman, Dr. L. F. McCormick, Dr. H. J. Coll and Dr. T. B. Eckhard all agreed to the feasibility of this plan, as well as to the desirability of the present site, for the purpose of which they agreed that the Cottage State hospital cannot be adapted to general hospital purposes, even by remodeling.

Dr. Eckhard was of the opinion that, following the practice being adopted in other states, it might not be many years before our own state would require that all hospitals be maintained as municipal institutions, in which case the burden of maintenance would fall wholly upon the communities served.

Ambassador Fletcher said he had not noticed any special anti-American feeling in Mexico and explained that the presence of more American citizens there than other foreigners probably accounted for the greater number of outrages affecting Americans.

CORONER'S JURY IN FAVOR OF PROBE OF TROTTER SHOOTING

It Recommends That Robert McMahon Be Held to Answer Charge of Killing Fred Cortel.

After he had admitted firing the shot the night of July 4 that caused the death of Fred Cortel, a jury summoned by Coroner S. H. Baum last evening recommended that Robert S. McMahon of Monongahela be held for the September grand jury. McMahon, who is 21 years old and who was with the Pennsylvania Reserve Militia at the annual encampment at Mount Gretna last week, said that Cortel rushed at him and a friend as they walked along the Limestone hill road, with his face covered by a handkerchief and acting as a highwayman would act. McMahon said he drew a revolver and fired. After being hit the man got up and walked away. McMahon said, as if he were not much hurt.

Cortel made his way home, lay on the floor of the kitchen all night, being too weak to get farther and being unable to attract the attention of the people at home. He died the next morning at the Cottage State hospital.

Alfonse Cortel, brother of the dead man, told the jury he heard Fred come home but did not know until the next morning that he had been shot. Fred told the family then, he said, that he was shot by two strangers and that no words had been exchanged. Mrs. Therese Cortel, mother of the young man, told a similar story.

McMahon, testifying, said he and Kenneth Simpson of Ellwood City had been to Ohio to a picnic and had spent the evening at the home of a girl friend at Trotter cross roads. They walked into Connellsville by way of the Limestone hill road because they thought it too late to get a car. It was dark along the road, he said. Suddenly a man appeared. He turned and walked away a few steps and then turned again and rushed at them, the witness said. He had a white handkerchief over the lower part of his face. McMahon declared. Simpson cried "Stop," and McMahon, "Halt," the witness testified. "When he did not stop I shot," he added.

McMahon informed the jury he had told his father of the incident Saturday, heard the man had died on Wednesday, told his attorney the next Tuesday and then had written to Chief of Police W. B. Bowers of Connellsville and had made an affidavit as to his part in the affair. He then went to Mount Gretna with the militia.

Simpson corroborated the testimony of McMahon. McMahon testified he shot with a Colt automatic revolver.

Simpson's father, testified his son did not own a revolver so far as he knew.

County Detective John J. Smith cross examined the prisoner. Attorney Chas. Hazzard of Monongahela City represented McMahon and Simpson. The jury was composed of J. B. Kurtz, Charles Donnelly, Harry Stafford, G. W. Patterson, L. N. Pringle and French S. Durr.

FOUR DEATHS IN RACE RIOTING AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

Casualties Heavy When Service Men and Civilians Attack Negroes.

AUTHORITIES POWERLESS

Provost Guards, Cavalry Squadrons and Patrolmen Unable to Cope with Situation; Negro Desperadoes in Automobiles Fire on the Whites.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Another night of race rioting found the national capital today counting the largest casualty list it has had since sailors, soldiers, marines and civilians began retaliation on the negro population for the long list of daylight holdups and attacks on white women which has alarmed the city. Four men dead, two mortally wounded, eight or more seriously wounded, an unknown number slightly wounded or injured in the fighting and police stations and hospitals packed with others are the results of the most disorderly times the capital has seen, probably since the Civil War.

Although reinforced with provost guards of troops and squadrons of cavalry patrolling Pennsylvania avenue the police apparently were unable to cope with the situation as they were when during the celebrated demonstration of March 3, 1913, when the crowds completely overran them and all but mobbed the suffragists parading on Pennsylvania avenue.

From trolley cars and swiftly moving automobiles negro desperadoes in parties, singly and in pairs, rained revolver shots into groups of whites whenever they found them and all night there was scattered firing from houses in which negroes, terror-stricken but not quelled, had barricaded themselves.

Today the local authorities were conferring with War Department officials on measures to stop the rioting. Suggestions are being made that troops be brought in to thoroughly guard the city which the police maintain they are unable to do because of insufficient numbers.

The first police report of the day told of another white woman assaulted and injured by a negro at Capital Heights, a suburb to the northeast of the city. The negro, who had loitered about the woman's house all yesterday, was first scared away and then, hiding behind a hedge, seized her as she passed by late last night. The woman was practically disrobed in her struggle with her assailant who escaped after she had scratched and bitten him badly. This was the seventh attack on white women by negro men in and near the district of Columbia within two weeks.

Simpson corroborated the testimony of McMahon. McMahon testified he shot with a Colt automatic revolver.

Simpson's father, testified his son did not own a revolver so far as he knew.

County Detective John J. Smith cross examined the prisoner. Attorney Chas. Hazzard of Monongahela City represented McMahon and Simpson. The jury was composed of J. B. Kurtz, Charles Donnelly, Harry Stafford, G. W. Patterson, L. N. Pringle and French S. Durr.

CITY GETS SOMETHING FOR NOTHING; ALDERMAN HOWARD DONATES A STRIP OF LAND

Council went through the unusual experience last night of having a citizen offer the city something for nothing. The donor was Alderman S. H. Howard. Mr. Howard, some years ago purchased what is now the southern terminus of Jefferson street, at Apple street.

Mr. Howard produced a deed for the street end. He said he bought the narrow strip of land to prevent it being owned farther north on the street being bottled up. The street has since been open, except for a short time when another citizen of the locality built a fence across. Mr. Howard offered to deed the property to the city. The offer will be accepted to clear the record.

Council, with this evening meet with Charles Young in an effort to agree on a price for a strip of land from Mr. Young for the purpose of widening the street.

WOULD SELL ARMY'S SURPLUS FOOD STOCK THROUGH PARCEL POST

Representative Kelly Offers Plan For Letting Public Get Benefit of Sales.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Representative Kelly of Pittsburgh has introduced a bill providing for the employment of the parcel post in distributing to the public the $20,000,000 worth of canned food offered for sale by the War Department. The bill is directed to the Secretary of War and is to prepare a price list of the goods and to state the method by which they can be sold to the public. The Postmaster General is instructed to distribute order blanks and have postmasters receive the money and the postal charges for purchases. These orders would be forwarded to the War Department and the goods shipped direct to the purchaser. A penalty of $100 to $1,000 is provided to prevent firms or individuals from buying the goods for resale.

Up to this time the War Department has been criticized because municipal authorities have been unable to secure definite information regarding prices and make the necessary arrangements for buying goods. Mr. Kelly's plan would bring the people directly in touch with the department and permit them to buy in such quantities as their means dictate.

PLAN TO REOPEN CURB MARKET ON FRIDAY MORNING

Farmers Ready to Bring Produce Here When Definite Arrangements Are Made.

DECIDE ON SAME LOCATION

Methodist Church Lot Again to be Used and Rules Will be Framed to Relieve City of Necessity of Cleaning It After Each Market Closes.

The curb market will be reopened Friday morning of this week on the site of last year—the Methodist Episcopal church lot. It will differ from last year so far as the city is concerned in that rules and regulations will be put into effect that will relieve the city of the expense of maintenance of the grounds, principally cleaning up after each market has closed.

County Farm Agent P. H. Sprengle and A. C. Oglevee of Dunbar township appeared before city council last night in furtherance of the project. Mr. Sprengle assured council the bureau would do all it could to have the farmers supply the produce the city wants. Much that is now being sold house to house, he said, will probably be delivered to the market.

The chief objection lodged against the arrangement of last year was that the farmers left accumulations of refuse on the grounds that required the services of a city employee a day, as a rule, to clear away. To overcome this various solutions were put forward but the finally accepted one was to have posted on the grounds a set of rules. These will provide either that the farmer return the refuse to his wagon or assemble it so that it can be easily gathered up and removed by the city motor truck force.

The market may not be as successful as the current year as last, Mr. Oglevee said, for the reason that the producers were in the dark as to whether there would be a market this year and did not make special plans. At the close of the present season it was suggested that the announcement be made of the plans for next year, together with the date of opening, if this is done, it was stated, the farmers will prepare.

The market, so far as is known now, will be open Tuesdays and Fridays.

DRY BILL PASSES

Prohibition Enforcement Act Approved by House. By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The prohibition enforcement bill described by members opposing it as drastic enough to invoke presidential veto, finally was passed today by the House.

The vote was taken after a motion by Representative Igoe, Democrat, Missouri, to recommit the bill had been defeated, 237 to 100. Nearly every member of the House was in attendance and there was so much noise in the hall that the Republican Leader Mondell was recorded as supporting the Igoe motion. He was permitted to change his vote.

CITY MEN TAKE STEPS TOWARD GENERAL HOSPITAL

Dr. R. S. McKee was quite certain that no trouble would be encountered in obtaining consent of the state authorities to the elimination of the Cottage State hospital provided it is to be supplanted by a complete and modernly equipped general hospital. He believed such an institution would be largely, if not altogether, self-supporting.

The suggestion of Dr. Hoffman that the proposed hospital have a capacity of at least 150 beds, and cost $200,000 to $250,000, would be adequate, and that decisive steps should be taken in the matter of arranging for such a structure, before going to the state authorities for aid, was accepted as the proper course and resulted in the passage of a resolution authorizing the appointment of a committee to arrange for the organization of a hospital association.

That the movement will have the cooperation and support of the large industrial enterprises in the vicinity was the assurance of W. O. Schooner, over and Dr. H. H. McIntyre, speaking for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, the former as the representative of Superintendent T. J. Brady and the latter as representative of the medical department. J. E. Auzie, county superintendent of the Fayette County Gas company, said his company could be counted upon, while T. J. Hooper, speaking for the Red Cross, pledged the sympathetic and interested aid of that organization.

The men present were: Ross S. Matthews, H. B. Brown, Jr., W. F. Underwood, E. T. Norton, Dr. W. J. Bailey, Dr. J. H. Coll, Rev. E. B. Burgess, Dr. H. C. Hoffman, W. D. McGinnis, T. J. Hooper, Rev. J. L. Prouditt, Dr. J. L. Cochran, Dr. H. H. McIntyre, Dr. R. S. McKee, Dr. L. P. McCormick, W. O. Schooner, George W. Campbell, H. George May, J. E. Angle, Dr. E. A. McCombs, Ralph K. Long, F. W. Wright and John L. Gans.

Following adjournment ice cream, cake and coffee was served by Mrs. W. O. Schooner, Mrs. J. M. Young, Mrs. A. B. Hood and Mrs. J. C. Whitley of the Red Cross canteen committee.

GRADE CROSSINGS

To Be the Subject of Hearings Before the Public Service Commission.

HARRISBURG, July 22.—The Public Service Commission will shortly complete an extensive series of hearings on complaints of the state highway department against railroad grade crossings on main traveled roads of the state and orders for abolition in the next two years will be issued. Under provisions of orders recently made the railroads and the federal authorities have to have work started at half a dozen places. Hundreds of thousands of dollars will be spent for construction of bridges and subways under these orders.

It is probable the complaint from Connelville will be considered at one of the hearings, the dates of which have not yet been announced.

Product of Thousands of Cows in Vicinity Contracted for, is Rumor.

FINE BUSINESS FOR FARMERS

New Enterprise of Crescent Brewery Will Call for Milk, Wash the Cans and Even Provide Feed at Cost Where it Must be Purchased; Notes.

Special to The Courier

SCOTSDALE July 22—What to do for milk after the Crescent Brewery at Harrisburg starts operating as a condensed milk factory is a question troubling people in this vicinity. Already, it is said, the product of thousands of the best cows for miles around has been contracted for and statements sent out by the company a few days ago notified the farmers to be ready for deliveries soon. Retail milk dealers are at a loss to know what to do to secure a supply.

The new concern is offering the farmer advantages that he never had from the milkman. It will call for the farmer's milk wash the cans and return them and will provide feed where it must be purchased to feed the stock at cost. The farmer when he sells the milkman or ships milk must meet the train or deliver into town. Unless they meet these requirements it looks as if milkmen in this vicinity would be almost a thing of the past.

A NEW OPPORTUNITY TO SERVE.

The dispatch with which the first steps have been taken in the matter of establishing a general hospital in Conneltsville is quite in line with the way Conneltsville has learned to do things. The need for such an institution being apparent to all persons who have made a study of the situation, the men who met last night to consider the question wasted no time in making the initial preparations to supply that need.

There was general agreement upon the proposition that the obligation rests upon the community to make more adequate provision for taking care of its sick; that means for this purpose can be provided and that such an institution can be made the logical successor of the State Cottage hospital. The latter has served its purpose in a splendid way but it was not designed as a general hospital and is not adapted to remodeling as such. The details of a plan for a general hospital are, of course, yet to be worked out, but the suggestion to erect the building in sections on the present hospital grounds, without impairing the usefulness of the present building until the new one is ready for use, is so practical that it cannot be made a subject of difference of opinion.

There is no doubt, in the minds of those conversant with such matters, but that the cooperation of the state authorities can be secured in working out the plan and by time of the next meeting of the Legislature the project would have progressed so far that the necessary steps can be taken to change the Cottage State hospital into a general hospital, continuing the service now being rendered but with the addition of facilities for taking care of the sick of the community as a whole.

In the discussion last night it was agreed, and the public generally needs to bear in mind, that the maintenance of the proposed institution will be rather more of a problem than securing means to erect and equip the structure. State aid in a certain amount will be available, but even if that be liberal, the expenses of operation will not be fully provided by the fees received for hospital service. This will create a condition which will have to be met by the industrial establishments, philanthropic citizens, churches and fraternalities in the city. It will provide such an excellent opportunity for a further expression of the desire to serve, which was exemplified by our people in a wonderful degree during the war, that there can be no doubt of both their willingness and their ability to discharge this obligation as completely as they have discharged others of like nature.

RETAINING THE RIGHT TO THE RED KEYSTONE.

As a result of the protest voiced by the former officers of the 10th Regiment, National Guard, and its successor, the 110th Infantry, the assurance has been given Congressman Crago that the red keystone, the insignia of the 28th Division in the World War, will not be transferred to the Regular Army, as had been proposed. This decision, coming upon the eve of the reorganization of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, indicates that the coveted badge of honor will remain the distinctive mark of Pennsylvania's volunteer soldiery. The reversal in the decision of the War Department authorities is also a just recognition of the exclusive right of Pennsylvania to perpetuate the deeds of valor of her heroic sons.

Aside from the action of the War Department in permitting Pennsylvania to retain the authorized emblem every member of the 28th Division is proud to wear further recognition of the military importance of the Keystone state is to be given in the reorganization of its National Guard. The formation of four infantry regiments has been authorized, an allotment greater than all other states except New York. In addition to this full division of infantry Pennsylvania will have the right to maintain auxiliary troops including one squadron of cavalry, one regiment of field artillery, one field signal battalion, one battalion of engineers, one sanitary train and one engineer train, complete.

Brigadier General Richard Coulter, formerly commander of the 10th Regiment, is to be the commander of one of the three brigades of the division. Many other officers and men who saw service with the Pennsylvania troops in the Philippines, on the Mexican border and in France, will re-enter the guard, an assurance that the reorganized National Guard of Pennsylvania will become as worthy a successor to the 28th Division as that organization was in turn worthy successor to the Pennsylvania Volunteers who served in the Spanish-American war.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS CHIEFTAINS PROBABLY WILL GATHER IN WASHINGTON IN FALL.

ROYALTY IS EXPECTED, TOO

King and Queen of Belgium and the Prince of Wales, Together With Cardinal Mercier, Are Expected Before Long.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—The guiding men in the membership of the League of Nations probably will hold a meeting in Washington some time next October. No definite arrangement to this effect has been made, but the understanding is that the second autumn month will witness a gathering of world notables in our national capital.

Whether or not the chieftains of the league are to assemble here, it is certain that Washington before long will be visited by some of the great men and women of the world, among them being the king and queen of Belgium, Cardinal Mercier, and the prince of Wales—for his conduct on the field of battle certainly entitles this young prince, as it entitles all others who have shown high courage, to be classed among the great ones.

Washington already is preparing to welcome royalty and royalty's representatives. As soon as definite information comes concerning the League of Nations meeting, the city will prepare to give that gathering the proper setting.

The forthcoming visit of the prince of Wales perhaps is interesting in a number of ways. The present prince is the second one of his rank in Great Britain to visit America. Only one other immediate heir apparent to the British throne ever visited this country. The prince's grandfather, who later was King Edward VII, came to the United States sixty years ago when he was about the age of the present prince, and here he had what later day princes might call "the time of his life."

Other Royal Visitors.

The forthcoming visit of King George's son recalls other visits of royalty and near royalty to the city of Washington. It was not long ago that the duke of Connaught, who held the British government's chief office in Canada, came to the United States to pay a visit to the British embassy. In a way his visit was to the president of the United States, but so far as public announcement was concerned he was coming here simply to visit the embassy, and incidentally to pay his respects to the president.

The duke certainly was a democrat. Possibly a good deal of his democracy was put on for the occasion, but if so it was the best counterfeited that ever passed as the genuine thing. The National Press club entertained the duke in its quarters. He said that he wanted to be treated simply as a guest who held a ten days' card at the club, and to a considerable extent this was what happened, but the boys pressed the duke into making a speech, which he did in a vein of mixed humor and seriousness.

Prior to the visit of the duke, Prince Henry of Battenberg came to Washington. He is a kin to the royalty of Great Britain. The prince is a sailor and he came to the United States in command of a squadron of the British navy which put in at Annapolis. From that city he came to Washington making his headquarters at the British embassy. He was entertained at the White House and at a number of clubs of the city.

When Henry of Prussia came. About fourteen years ago Prince Henry of Prussia came to the United States. Since his visit all kinds of interpretations have been put on the reason therefor. This government certainly laid itself out to entertain properly the prince of the royal house which during the last two years has been doing its best to put this country out of commission.

What war does in curious ways is evidenced by the fact that the American army officer, then a major, Joseph T. Dickman, who was assigned by the war department as an aide to Prince Henry while in this country, is the same Joseph T. Dickman, who, as a major general, led the American army of occupation into Germany. It is possible would have been somewhat awkward for Joseph T. if he had met Prince Henry, his former traveling companion, when the American troops entered Coblenz. Henry, however, was far away from self-imposed exile.

When the grandfather of the present prince of Wales came to America, also as the prince of Wales, he saw something which his grandson will not see. He witnessed the dizzy performance of Blondin who crossed the gorge of Niagara Falls on a tight rope, carrying a young man on his back. The prince congratulated Blondin, but then he turned to the young man whom Blondin had carried across and said, "You are the bravest young man I ever met."

The man whom Blondin carried across was a volunteer, willing to take his life in his hands. His name was Henry Colcord. Later he lived in the city of Chicago where he became an artist of some note. He painted the picture of Abraham Lincoln which hangs in the building of the Chicago Historical society.

The Claim of Runymede. Every now and again, it is given to some man somewhere to utter a "heaven-sent phrase," which brings with it instant and almost startling illumination on a question, where long columns of explanation and long moments of eloquence might, utterly fail. Such a phrase came from Josephus Daniels, the secretary of the United States navy, the other day, in the course of one of his speeches in England. "No Englishman," declared Mr. Daniels, "has more claim to Runymede than I."—Christian Science Monitor.

VICTORIAN ERA WORTH WHILE

Dressed Rehearsal for Those Who Smile at Epoch Which Had Many Good Points.

Why do the deathless rage against the Victorian epoch? Men who lived through a great part of it found it exciting, interesting, amusing and sometimes terrible. Talleyrand once said that nobody could understand the real delights of society unless he had lived before the French revolution. Similarly, what young person, or young person, of today can experience the delights of the time when it was possible to begin at ease the first chapter of a volume of Dickens or Thackeray, to wait impatiently for George Eliot's new novel or even to bear the shock of Robert Buchanan's famous review of Swinburne? There were, too, the terrors occasioned by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe when her fierce Puritan friendship induced her to print the confidences of Lady Byron! Our eyes were turned towards England, it is true, yet Hawthorne and Emerson were not only discussed, but read. Among the lesser lights there were Gail Hamilton and James Fields, whose very satisfying literary essays were great features of the Atlantic Monthly. People really did not spend their time in singing "Judas" or in reading "Ozark" on the sly, nor did all the women dress in the magenta and salmon tones, in which contemporary satirists clothed the ladies of the middle periods of Victoria and Eugene. The Crimean and Civil wars, so microscopic to the careless young, the Franco-Prussian struggle which preluded the chaos of 1914, were events that kept our minds from stagnating; and there were doers and thinkers in Europe worth our constant consideration.—Maurice Francis Egan in Yale Review.

FORGOT PROMISE TO CLIENT

Eminent Lawyer Talked Altogether Too Freely Over His Whisky and Soda at the Club.

St. Thomas-Lipton, spoke in a Y. M. C. A. address in New York, about honor among business men. "Too many business men," he said, "fall from honor thoughtlessly. They are like an eminent divorce lawyer whom I overheard one night prattling over his whisky and soda at the club. 'Yes,' said the eminent lawyer, 'she's a very beautiful woman. Nervous, of course—of course very nervous just now. So I said to her gently, as soon as I sent my secretary out of the room: "Now, my dear lady, I know in these cases there are many little details which a woman of your position and refinement is most reluctant to divulge. But it is necessary, if our case is to succeed, that I be fully acquainted with all you have had to suffer. Of course you will understand that what you tell me will never go beyond the four walls of this room. I shall regard your confidence as absolutely sacred, and you need have no hesitation in revealing all, for you may be sure that no other human being will ever learn from me the details of your troubles." Well, that gave her more confidence, of course, and, gentlemen, this is what she told me."

Tunnel Through the Pyrenees. The rigors of mountain weather, opposition from the national ministries of war, and a difference in gauge have all united in the past to prevent an effective joining of French and Spanish railways, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Work on the project has been carried on since 1914, however, and it is now announced that a new tunnel from Ax, in France, to Puigcerdas, on the Spanish side, has been broken through, and will cement this desirable union more firmly.

Not So Equal. "Don't you like to get back to nature, where all men are equal?" "Yes, but it doesn't always work out that way. Summer cottagers are inclined to snub the campers."

"Then of course it's time I did tell you. You know yourself there are a lot of people in the East—in the South too, for that matter—that don't think we've got any particular family or position or culture in this part of the country. There were one or two in my crowd at college; their families had lived on their income for three generations, and they never dreamed there was anybody in their class out here. I had to show them a thing or two, right at the start, and I guess they won't forget it! Well, I think it's time all their sort found out that three generations can mean just as much out here as anywhere else."

"But what are you going to do, George?" she cried.

George's earnestness surpassed here; he had become flushed and his breathing was emotional. "I expect to live an honorable life," he said. "I expect to contribute my share to charities, and to take part in movements."

"What kind?"

"Whatever appeals to me," he said. Lucy looked at him with a pensive wonder. "But you really don't mean to have any regular business or profession at all?"

"I certainly do not!" George returned promptly and emphatically. "I was afraid so," she said in a low voice.

George continued to breathe deeply throughout another protracted interval of silence. Then he said, "Your father is a business man—"

"He's a mechanical genius," Lucy interrupted quickly. "Of course he's both. And he was a lawyer once—he's done all sorts of things."

"Very well. I merely wished to ask if it's his influence that makes you think I ought to do something?"

Lucy frowned slightly. "Why, I suppose almost everything I think or say must be owing to his influence in one way or another. We haven't had anybody but each other for so many years, and we always think about alike, so of course—"

"I see!" And George's brow darkened with resentment. "So that's it, is it? It's your father's idea that I ought to go into business and that you ought to be engaged to me until I do?"

Lucy gave a start, her denial was so quick. "No! I've never once spoken to him about it. Never!"

George looked at her keenly, and he jumped to a conclusion not far from the truth. "But you know without talking to him that it's the way he does feel about it? I see."

She nodded gravely. "Yes."

George's brow grew darker still. "Do you think I'd be good of a man," he said slowly, "if I let any other and anger narrowed his eyes. "I know what you mean," he said. "I dare say I don't care for your father's ideals any more than he does for mine!"

He tightened the reins, Pendennis quickening eagerly to the trot; and when George jumped out of the runabout before Lucy's gate, and assisted her to descend, the silence in which they parted was the same that had begun when Pendennis began to trot.

CHAPTER XIII.

George went driving the next afternoon alone and, encountering Lucy and her father on the road, in one of Morgan's cars, lifted his hat, but otherwise relaxed his formal countenance as they passed. Eugene waved a cordial hand quickly returned to the steering wheel; but Lucy only nodded gravely and smiled no more than George did. Nor did she accompany Eugene to the Major's for dinner the following Sunday evening, though both were bidden to attend that feast, which was already reduced in numbers and gaiety by the absence of George Amberson. Eugene explained to his host that Lucy had gone away to visit a school friend.

The information, delivered in the library, just before old Sam's appearance to announce dinner, set Miss Minster in quite a flutter. "Why, George!" she said, turning to her nephew, "How does it happen you didn't tell us?" And with both hands opening, as if to express her innocence of some conspiracy, she exclaimed to the others: "He's never said one word to us about Lucy's planning to go away!"

"Probably afraid to," the Major suggested. "Didn't know but he might break down and cry if he tried to speak of it!" He clapped his grandson on the shoulder, inquiring jocularly: "That it, George?"

George made no reply, but he was red enough to justify the Major's developing a chuckle into laughter; though Miss Fanny, observing her nephew keenly, got an impression that his fiery blush was in truth more fiery than tender.

After the arrival of coffee the Major was rallying Eugene upon some rival automobile shops lately built in a suburb, and already promising to flourish.

"I suppose they'll either drive you out of the business," said the old gentleman, "or else the two of you'll drive all the rest of us off the streets."

"If we do we'll even things up by making the streets five or ten times as long as they are now," Eugene returned.

"How do you propose to do that?"

"It isn't the distance from the center of a town that counts," said Eugene; "it's the time it takes to get there. This town's already spreading; trolleys and trolleys have been doing their share, but the automobile is going to carry city streets clear out to the county line."

The Major was skeptical. "Dream on, fair son!" he said. "It's lucky for us that you're only dreaming; because

If people go to moving that far, real estate values in the old residence part of town are going to be stretched pretty thin."

"I'm afraid so," Eugene assented. "Unless you keep things so bright and clean that the old section will stay more attractive than the new ones."

"Not very likely! How are things going to be kept 'bright and clean' with soft coal and our kind of city government?"

"They aren't," Eugene replied quickly. "There's no hope of it, and already the boarding house is marching up National avenue. My relatives, the Sharons, have sold their house and are building in the country—at least they call it 'the country.' It will be city in two or three years."

"Good gracious!" the Major exclaimed, affecting dismay. "So your little shops are going to ruin all your old friends, Eugene?"

"Unless my old friends take warning in time, or abolish smoke and get a new kind of city government."

"Well, well!" the Major laughed. "You have enough faith in miracles, Eugene—granting that trolleys and bicycles and automobiles are miracles. So you think they're to change the face of the land, do you?"

"They're already doing it, Major; and it can't be stopped. Automobiles—"

At this point he was interrupted. George was the interrupter. He had said nothing since entering the dining room, but now he spoke in a loud and peremptory voice, using the tone of one in authority who checks idle prattle and settles a matter forever.

"Automobiles are a useless nuisance," he said.

There fell a moment's silence. Isabel gazed incredulously at George, color slowly brightening upon her cheeks and temples, while Fanny watched him with a quick eagerness, her eyes alert and bright. But Eugene seemed merely quizzical, as if not taking this brusquerie to himself. The Major was seriously disturbed.

"What did you say, George?" he asked, though George had spoken but too distinctly.

"I said all automobiles were a nuisance," George answered, repeating not only the words but the tone in which he had uttered them. And he added: "They'll never amount to anything but a nuisance. They had no business to be invented."

The Major frowned. "Of course you forget that Mr. Morgan makes them, and also did his share in inventing them. If you weren't so thoughtless he might think you rather offensive."

"That would be too bad," said George coolly. "I don't think I could survive it."

Again there was a silence, while the Major stared at his grandson, aghast. But Eugene began to laugh cheerfully.

man dictate to me my own way of life?"

"George! Who's dictating to that?"

"It seems to me it amounts to you!"

"Oh, No! I only know how papa thinks about things. He's never, never spoken unkindly or 'dictatorially' of you." Her face was so touching in its distress that for the moment George forgot his anger. He seized that small, troubled hand.

"Lucy," he said huskily. "Don't you know that I love you?"

"Yes—I do."

"Don't you love me?"

"Yes—I do."

"Then what does it matter what your father thinks about my doing something or not doing anything? He has his way, and I have mine. Why, look at your father's best friend, my Uncle George Amberson—he's never done anything in his life, and—"

"Oh, yes, he has," she interrupted. "He was in politics."

"Well, I'm glad he's out," George said. "Politics is a dirty business for a gentleman, and Uncle George would tell you that himself. Lucy, let's not talk any more about it. Let me tell mother when I get home that we're engaged. Won't you, dear?"

She shook her head. "No," she said, and gave him a sudden little look of renewed gaiety. "Let's let it stay 'almost.'"

"Because your father—"

"Oh, because it's better!"

George's voice shook. "Isn't it your father?"

"It's his ideals I'm thinking of—"

George dropped her hand abruptly.

DADDY LONG LEGS—A seven reel feature presenting Mary Pickford, America's little sweetheart in the best production of her screen career, is being shown today. Not everyone can act with her feet but Mary Pickford does this very convincingly in her newest vehicle. There is never a dull moment in Daddy Long Legs. It has just enough sentiment of the right sort to balance the comedy, which is of a thoroughly entertaining character. Nothing has been left to chance in respect to the laugh getting element of the picture. Mrs. Pickford as Judy Abbott who is mothered by an ash can, christened by a telephone director and reared on the wholesale plan, plays her part with all the zest of a beginner—as if she were indeed an awkward little girl in a horrible union suit, and not the greatest lady in the book of screen peeresses. She has never done a thing more wholeheartedly in her life and as the parts go she has never done anything better in her life. Serious interest is put into the story when Judy is sent to college. It is in this scene where the celebrated star does some of the finest acting of her career. It is also where she talks with her feet. Her play of mixed emotions is beautifully done. 'Daddy Long Legs' is universal entertainment. Take your grandma your girl, and your mother. It is an hour and a half of perfect entertainment and enjoyment for all. Supporting Miss Pickford is Mahlon Hamilton, Marshal Neilan and Wes Barry, the freckled face boy, and other screen stars of prominence.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"BEAUTY PROOF"—In which Harry Morey is seen as Corporal Steele, a Northwest mounted policeman who is called Beauty Proof because of his indifference to women is being presented today. Through an arrest he meets a beautiful girl of mystery with whom he falls in love only to find himself obliged to arrest her for slaying a man who had attacked her—the same man who had wrecked his home. It is his supreme struggle between love and duty and the double desire for revenge that gives power to the picture. Many of the scenes were filmed out of doors when the snow lay deep and these snow scenes, together with dog teams and snowshoes, lend fascination to the film. Mr. Morey has a splendid role of action in which he displays at best advantage his great physical and dramatic powers. He is supported by an excellent cast of well known screen players. A selected comedy is also being shown. Thursday Madge Evans, the popular child actress will be presented in 'Wanted a Home' Friday and Saturday Tom Moore will be featured in 'One of the Finest' a Goldwyn attraction.
